Extract from the Viceroy's Autumn Tour Book.

The Chamundi hill which overlooks Mysore, is two miles south-east of the Fort. It is precipitous, and a fine path 5½ miles long leads to the top, on which there is a temple. Human sacrifices were offered here until the time of Haider Ali. Chamundi is a title of the goddess Kali. Two-thirds of another way up the hill by a flight of steps is a colossal figure of Nandi, the sacred bull of Siva, 16 feet high, hewn out of solid rock -- a well executed work of about 1679 A. D.
